TIRED NAZIS BOGGING DOWN

$140,377 SET AS WAR CHEST CAMPAIGN GOAL

Amount Includes Community Fund Budget; Drive To Be Staged in November.

AGENCIES APPROVED

Mansfield's Share To Be 75 Per Cent; Shelby 20, Rest of County 5 Per Cent.

Mansfield and Richland county will be called upon to raise $140,377 in the combined Community Fund and War Chest campaign to be staged in November, according to the total budget approved yesterday by the War Chest executive committee.

Action by the committee followed an earlier meeting held by the Community Fund executive board to approve the Community Fund budget of $65,020 for the fiscal year starting Nov. 1. This budget was recently submitted by the Fund budget committee headed by A. C. Courtney, chairman.

Plans for the War Chest campaign will be completed this week, Henry G. Brunner, president of the War Chest organization, announced at the executive session held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms. A campaign chairman will be appointed this week and dates for the drive will then get set.

The total War Chest budget calls for $75,357 from Mansfield, Shelby and the county and includes a contingency fund for $15,000 to provide for worthy requests during the year not included in the first recommended list of the National Budget committee.

All of the 10 agencies recommended by the admissions and distribution committee headed by C. A. Hines, were approved by the executive committee plus another which did not submit its application until after the recommendations were made. The request of the Richland Victory Civic committee, which finances "send-offs" for Richland county men entering the service, was approved.

Six of the war relief agencies are new to the county this year. They are the Queen Wilhelmina Relief for the Dutch, Polish, War Relief, Russian War Relief, War Prisoners Aid committee, American Social Hygiene (Anti-syphilis association) and the National Y. W. C. A. War Relief Fund.

Other agencies previously established in the county and accepted by the War Chest were

City Defense Set-Up Reorganized; White Test Alert Scheduled

Kalbfleisch Names Committee To Carry Out Air Raid Precautions; Public To Get Instructions.

Recent disclosures of inadequacies brought about last night a reorganization of Mansfield's civilian defense council into committees and chairmanships for the six protective branches, with specific duties and efforts delegated to each, while today brought notification of the city's first alarm system test and announcement of a possible partial or total test blackout.

Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, defense coordinator, named committees of three within the council membership, each group being charged with immediately creating an effective organization for their respective branch

Decision was reached to obtain 8,000 pamphlets on "What to Do" in actual or simulated air raids, blackout instruction books, 5,000 report forms for air wardens, 125 logbook and diary records for wardens, and Kalbfleisch was instructed to consider the printing of large wall placards for household display.

Floyd Dent, Mansfield area Boy Scout executive, will be asked to have scouts distribute this matter to every home in Mansfield.

Charles Beelman becomes chief of staff of the defense setup in charge of messengers and drivers. He will relieve the coordinator of some of his duties.

Council members will give further consideration to the suggestion of employing a full-time disaster-experienced executive director to work under the direction of Kalbfleisch and the council.

Today Kalbfleisch received a telegram from D. E. Park, state communications coordinator, notifying him that a "white" test alert will be received from the district warning center at Sandusky between 8 and 10 p. m. Wednesday, Sept. 30. The message does not call for a city-wide observance but will determine the speed with which the alarm is distributed from the Sandusky center, through the local reception bureau and on to the office of Sheriff Frank Robinson, the city police department and other required points.

The telegram reads:

"Your sub-district warning center will receive a white test alert call from your district warning center on Wednesday, Sept. 30, between 8 and 10 p. m. Immediately upon receipt of the white test call at your warning center please note actual time and proceed with the calls on your official state warning list covering points to be warned by your center. Forms will be forwarded for recording the time each point is warned, answers, and any failure to follow civil air raid warning instructions. This is to be a telephone communication test only and does not involve calling other points in your county."

Primarily, the test is designed to demonstrate the work of establishing and maintaining contact with the district warning center at Sandusky, those identified with the city's alarm signal and control center system said

Kalbfleisch is considering today the feasibility of ordering a test blackout in one or more wards, probably in the business area only—or, more likely, a city-wide test in conjunction with the communications test.

Clarence Lisle, chief of the alarm and control center setup, has nearly completed his system which will be centrally located in the city, Kalbfleisch told the council.

Sports Scribe Who Preferred War Story 'Missing In Action'

By J. C. OSTREICHER
(INS) Foreign Editor)

NEW YORK—"Missing in action . . . Will Forward personal effects . . ."

This was the message that came to us today, brief, terse and tragic.

It was the story of Jack Singer, the young sports writing whiz who wouldn't be content with the Dodgers and the Cardinals and the hockey games while this man's war was on and took a hazardous assignment as a war correspondent in the Pacific zone.

The word came from the Navy Department at Washington after 24 hours' of suspense. We had heard from Richard Haller, our chief correspondent at Honolulu, that something had gone wrong. But it wasn't definite. And it was unbelievable that the crisp young man who had filed some of the greatest stories of the war had so suddenly passed out of the picture.

But the navy's message had no denying. It said:

"Jack Singer missing in action. Haller will forward personal effects to you."

Singer was 27. He had been out with the fleet for several months, ducking bombs and bullets and reporting on the fine job our navy is doing against the Japs.

As a general rule, Jack Singer's stories of war in the Pacific had no "I's" in them.

He concentrated on the bravery and the courage of the men around him, the officers and men of the navy who are winning the war. He wrote as though he was sitting at the ringside where he was known so well in earlier days, alongside of Bill Conn, Joe Williams and the rest.

But there was an exception. One week ago today there came flashing through to this office a story that will live long in memory. Without asking approval of any of his superiors, Jack had gone out on a navy torpedo plane to sit alongside navy gunners and navy bombardiers in an attack against a Japanese aircraft carrier.

He knew better than to ask permission in advance. It would have been turned down. No head office will assume the heavy responsibility of assigning a working newspaperman to covering a story where the risk is suicidal.

So Jack went on his own.

"Perhaps that isn't my heart I hear pounding over the ear-shattering roar of the motor—but nobody can tell me it's a knock on the engine."

That's how he started his story. He was no phoney.

County Prepares Set-Up To Ration Farming Equipment

A new Richland county rationing committee will be set up to allocate farm machinery which has been frozen by government order, Guy L. Taylor, county AAA chairman, announced today.

Taylor will serve as a member of the three member committee. He said the other two members would be named within a few days by the county war board which is made up of farm group leaders. Two alternate members also will be chosen.

All heavy farm machinery, including tractors, shredders, corn pickers, grain drills, balers, milking machines, potato diggers, harrows, grinders, combines, and fertilizer and manure spreaders, has been frozen in the hands of dealers because of the urgent need for steel in the manufacturing of war equipment, the department of agriculture said.

New equipment will be placed "where it will do the most good toward the production of food for freedom," Taylor said. Farmers who want to buy new equipment will be required to place their requests in the hands of the rationing committee which will decide whether the applcants actually need the machinery to help them produce food under the government program.

There will be no restrictions on the sale of hoes, rakes, forks, scythes, shovels, and hand-operated and most one-horse drawn equipment. Sale or transfer of used farm machinery and parts will not be controlled.

KNOX PREDICTS MAJOR DRIVE ON SOLOMONS

Navy Secretary Asserts U. S. Forces Are Girding To Meet Enemy Attack.

AMERICANS REINFORCED

Japs Use Air Power For First Time in Two Weeks For New Guinea Attack.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox stated today that American forces in the southwest Pacific are operating on the assumption that the Japanese will soon start a "big push" in another attempt to oust American forces from the Solomon islands.

The statement was made by Knox at his weekly press conference when questioned about recent reports that the Japanese are preparing for a big drive in the southwest Pacific.

"That is a safe and sound assumption," the secretary replied. "We operate on that basis—to do otherwise would be foolish overconfidence."

Meanwhile lack of official news from the Solomons indicated that American forces in that area still are holding and reinforcing their positions in the strategic Guadalcanal-Tulagi area.

Recent navy communiques stated that American forces in the Solomons are being reinforced and have been receiving supplies in a fairly steady stream apparently in preparation for another Nipponese attack in force.

Meanwhile, other naval analysts asserted that powerful Japanese fleet units apparently have been lurking in Pacific waters hundreds of miles northeast of U. S. positions in the Tulagi area awaiting a chance to slip unobserved past patrol planes for another attempt to dislodge American forces from the Solomons.

This belief has been strengthened by the fact that the Nipponese have made several attempts to sneak through from this direction but each time have been routed by long-range bombers, pa-

Rumanian Premier Agrees To Give Hitler More Help.

LONDON—(INS)— Reuters news agency said today in a dispatch from Ankara, Turkey, that it had been learned that Premier Ion Antonescu of Rumania had agreed to send all of Rumania's remaining troops, with the exception of five divisions, to the Russian front.

The five divisions to be kept at home, it was said, would be stationed along the Hungarian frontier.

In making the agreement, it was reported Antonescu insisted that Rumanian forces in the future fight together on one sector of the Russian front, preferably in the region of Novorossisk in the Caucasus.

SENATOR HITS REPEAL MOVE

Says Contract Renegotiations Save Nation Money.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The senate finance committee today will consider demands for repeal of the renegotiation of contracts law as Sen. Kenneth McKellar (D) Tenn., served notice that he would fight any repeal move.

"The authority to renegotiate war contracts has already saved this country more than $2,000,000," said McKellar. "Contracts have been scaled down that much within a few months."

One of the chief criticisms directed at the law by industrialists is that the government can scale down the same contracts more than once and the authority continues until three years after the war. This creates so much uncertainty, they say, that it makes it difficult for them to finance expanded production.

Vinson Declares Dieppe Just Forecast of Attacks as FDR Boosts Appropriation.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—"Dieppe and the Solomon Islands are merely forecasts of the shape of things to come," Chairman Vinson (D., Ga.) of the house naval affairs committee declared today in a public statement on the naval expansion program.

The Georgian's statement, asserting that "at sea we are beginning to turn the corner," was issued to reporters after President Roosevelt had requested yesterday an additional $2,731,154,308 to bring the navy's current year appropriation to a record high of approximately $17,000,000,000.

"We are now pushing our greatly augmented program of naval construction with the utmost speed at our command," Vinson said. "When it is completed and joins forces with the British and other Allied navies, it will give the United Nations a more nearly global strength at sea than the world has ever seen, and seapower, welded by ships and aircraft, is the anvil on which the decision in this global war is being hammered out."

Vinson predicted the new navy would give the United States "the added escort and patrol craft needed to put an end to the U-boat menace" and "will enable us to take the offensive with superior force in any theater we chose."

"When the new land front is launched in the west of Europe,"

Blast At France Hints Italians Peeved At Axis

BERN, Switzerland — (AP) — A bitter tirade against France by a semi-official Italian publication was interpreted today as indicating Italy's growing dissatisfaction with what she has gotten out of the Axis and her dwindling hopes of winning any material demands from participation in the war.

This conclusion was drawn by experienced observers from an article which appears in the weekly foreign affairs journel "Relazione Internationale, and which, though directed at France, lacked any expression of faith that the Nazis would support Italy's war ambitions.

The article, voicing a fear known to have been widely held for some time in Italy, expressed belief that Pierre Laval, French chief of government, is cooperating with the Germans in the hope of winning the upper hand over Italy and foiling Italian territorial ambitions.

Relazione's viewpoint coincided in many ways with views generally held in United Nations quarters. It made three points:

1. The "patriotic ideal" of Frenchmen is that France is

Recovers Memory, Finds She Wed Man She Can't Remember

(By Associated Press)

HOLLYWOOD—The widow of a Binghamton, N. Y., editor suffering from amnesia for almost a year, recovered her memory yesterday to find herself married to a man she can't remember.

The mixup came to light when Mrs. Glory Weller Miller, 35, awoke in the unfamiliar surroundings of a motor hotel. Bewildered and not certain of her identity, she appealed to the hotel manager for assistance. He took her to the police station.

There police speedily identified her through a picture supplied by her husband, Henry Miller, a commercial photographer who had reported her missing.

But Miller was a stranger to his wife. She had no recollection of meeting him, of their marriage in Las Vegas, Nev., May 1, or of her life with him since.

The shock which led to her plight occurred Nov. 4, 1941, she said, when she entered her home in Atascadero, Calif., and found her first husband, H. Pierce Weller, 50, dead. That was her last remembrance until her recovery in the Motor Hotel. She didn't know the nation was at war; she had no recollection of the attack on Pearl Harbor.

"I don't know what to do," she told interviewers. "I can't stay with someone I don't know. I realized all the evidence indicates I was married to Mr. Miller, but I don't know him. I can't remember even meeting him."

Mrs. Miller consulted her diary in an effort to fill the gaps in her life, and found this entry apparently, to Weller, her first husband.

"Dearest Pierce: Up at 5:30, dressed in new wedding clothes. Off at Las Vegas . . . Breakfast. Henry got me a corsage. Marriage license. Justice of the peace . . . took pictures. Boarded train."

CAUCASUS BATTLE RAGES

Enemy Continues Drive on Mozdok 60 Miles From Grozny Oil Fields.

(By International News Service)

MOSCOW — Clearly showing the strain of their incessant but futile attacks, German troops besieging Stalingrad were halted in their tracks today and in some areas hurled as far as a mile beyond the outskirts of the city.

Savage Soviet counter-attacks prevented the Nazis from recovering their strength or regrouping their forces for renewal of an all-out offensive against the city.

For the past two days, German troops have been held penned in outlying streets of Stalingrad. Every effort to attack was repulsed by the Soviets and the Russians thrust frequently to push the enemy farther back.

Front-line dispatches said it was clearly evident that the Germans are now unable to follow up their initial initiative.

"In the Stalingrad area," an official communique said, "repeated enemy attacks were repulsed and in some places our troops advanced.

"One large (Soviet) unit killed 400 of the enemy."

The mid-Caucasus blazed with the fury of battle as the Germans strove desperately to break Soviet resistance there and advance on the Grozny oil fields.

It was acknowledged by the Red army high command that the Nazis captured a height at an inhabited locality in the vicinity of Mozdok, 60 miles northwest of Grozny. On another sector of this front a charge by German tanks and infantry was repulsed.

On the front northwest of Moscow, the communique said, fierce fighting was in progress for an unnamed inhabited lo-

BATTLING FOR HIGHER PARITY

Farm Bloc Fights For Upward Revision of Price Basis In Anti-Inflation Bill.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — (UP) — The senate agriculture committee today voted 14 to 1 to back a proposed farm bloc amendment to the administration's anti-inflation legislation to require that all labor costs be included in computing farm parity prices.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — A resurgent farm bloc fought a nip and tuck battle with administration forces today to inject a new and higher basis for agricultural parity prices into the anti-inflation bill.

Although Democratic Leader Barkley (Kentucky) and others remained confident they could defeat a proposed upward revision of 4.6 per cent, the senate was reported so evenly divided on the parity question that a handful of votes might decide the issue.

"It looks all right," Barkley told reporters before the senate began its second day of debate on the measure. The house, a day behind, arranged for general discussion today with amendments coming up for a vote tomorrow.

Parity is a price standard which, when reached, is calculated to equalize the return the farmer receives for what he sells with the prices of the things he buys. In the past, it has been used as the basis for making government loans and as a goal for a fair return to the farmer.

It has assumed paramount importance now because, under

Schools Allowed $643,784 For '43 Operating Costs

The Richland county budget commission slashed $3,400 from the amount Mansfield schools sought for operation expenses in 1943, giving the schools a total of $643,784 for next year, Clerk John H. Eisaman of the board of education told the board last night at its monthly session.

Despite the cut ordered by the budget commission, the city's schools will have $42,385 more for operation next year than they received in 1942.

The increase will take care of the cost of $90 annual pay increases granted each teacher and employe last spring by the board and finance replacement of school equipment and the purchase of new text books.

The schools received $99,200 for bonds and interest in 1943, a reduction of $14,040 from this year's figure. Debt requirements will not be so high next year, Eisaman pointed out, because a portion of the school debt is paid off annually, reducing the principal and the interest charges.

Citing the declining sales tax revenue in Richland county, the budget commission set the city schools' probable income from the state school foundation source in 1943 at $173,184, or $10,000 less than the board of education had estimated. A part of the $10,000 slash in that fund was wiped out, however, by increased county tax revenue in prospect for next year.

Italian Count, Five Others Are Arrested at Rio.

RIO DE JANEIRO —(INS)— Six Italians, already under arrest, were revealed today to have been involved in the operation of an Axis spy ring headed by Count Edmondo Di Robilant who, police said, has confessed to operating secret radio transmitters to supply the enemy with ship movements.

The dashing Italian count, who was taken into custody some time ago, told police that he had several henchmen operating radio stations in the suburbs of Rio De Janeiro and police immediately started a search.

Two powerful stations already have been uncovered as well as a large amount of money. From information now in the hands of authorities, there were indications that further arrests might be forthcoming in a short time.

Speaking For Myself.

I am interested to note that glamor girls seem to be marrying for love these days. Apparently the sugar daddy is out-dated as an actuality as well as a term, true affection is paramount, and any girl who sneaks a peek at a lad's bank account before saying "yes" is a cad.

Kilgallen

The vogue started or reached its summit, in Hollywood this season when within a few weeks of each other Lana Turner, Joan Crawford and Norma Shearer all glided to the altar with gentlemen whose store of worldly goods was, to put it mildly, modest. When this can happen in a town dedicated to cabbage, the indication is that love really does conquer all, just like in the books.

But if the fad for bridegrooms of slender means grows, I wonder what will happen to the poor unfortunate fellows who have a lot of money? Probably they will go around scattering their millions upon street corners and the floors of buses, happily bent on achieving complete poverty and become eligible for holy wedlock with a Dream Girl.

The salvage drives being conducted by the government are making me terribly waste-conscious. I've never saved anything—string, old theater programs, snapshots, souvenirs of Paris, or even money—before this, but Uncle Sam has got me now.

Everytime I toss away a small piece of paper, say a bill, I get the guilty feeling that maybe there's some committee I ought to be passing it on to. And this salvage-consciousness spreads. Get used to saving paper and toothpaste tubes and kitchen fat and you are likely to start accumulating twine, cardboard boxes, jelly jars, match folders and old galoshes.

It keeps me busy filing away various things that aren't needed yet, but which I vaguely feel may be asked for by some initialed government bureau before the war is over. And the storage problem it creates is something awful.

I think Billy Rose must be growing old and conservative. I haven't heard even a rumor that he's offered Senior Lieut. Liudmila Pavlichenko, the Soviet girl sniper, a place in his chorus line at the Diamond Horseshoe. . . . And speaking of Liudmila, I think she will not do very well in the department of international good will if she makes many more derogatory statements about American women and their devotion to the frivolities.

Liudmilla has lost her sense of humor, and I guess shooting 309 Nazis is a good way to lose it, but someone should tell her that a smart emissary of the Soviet should not be violent in her criticism of half the population of the country she is visiting, regardless of her private thoughts.

What Liudmilla has no way of knowing is that American girls are amazingly versatile of spirit. They can concentrate on an assembly line even while wearing silk underwear. Their manicured hands can perform the most menial—and most vital — hospital tasks. They can wear lipstick and fly a plane at the same time. A permanent wave, Liudmilla, has absolutely no effect on patriotism.

Well, I must say I enjoyed "Show Time," especially because of Georgie Jessel, who is my favorite telephone conversationalist and public sentimentalist, and Ella Logan, who can keep on singing for a whole evening so far as I am concerned.

Jack Haley never has made me laugh very heartily, though: he is not a comic-looking fellow, to begin with, being rather handsome and sharply dressed, and he uses no dialect, and his jokes have been moth-food for years.

I think Bob Hope is the only comedian who ever succeeded in being simultaneously good-looking and hilarious, and even he has that ski nose. Maybe that's what Haley needs, a ski nose.

For laughs via the printed page, I recommend Ludwig Bemelman's newest, "I Love You, I Love You, I Love You." You'll giggle, you'll giggle, you'll giggle. . . . The dim-out certainly has changed Broadway. Whoever thought Shubert Alley at 9 p. m. would be a great place for a murder.

Stone wrote to local councils that "the state's civilian and industrial protection program will teach thousands of persons ways and means of defending themselves and their homes against fire as well as bombs an dsabotage."

State Conservation Officials Expected For Session; Public Rides Scheduled.

A regatta, speeches by state conservation authorities, an outdoor picnic and free sailboat rides for the public will be features of the dedication ceremony to be staged by the Sportsmen's Sailing club of Charles Mill Dam next Sunday afternoon.

Louis Bromfield, author and conservation enthusiast, will make the principal address at 4:30 p. m. in the formal ceremony at the club docks which are located on Charles Mill lake eight miles east of Mansfield on U. S. 30 east.

Brief talks also will be made by Newton Mansfield, New Philadelphia, chairman of the Muskingum Watershed Conservancy district; W. T. Windsor, Columbus, assistant commissioner of the division of conservation and natural resources of Ohio; and Bryce Browning, New Philadelphia, secretary-treasurer of the Muskingum Watershed Conservancy district.

Earl C. Pollock, Mansfield, chairman of the sailing club's committee which has planned the event, said today that Sunday's program, which is open to the public, will start at noon.

A special dock is being constructed from which all visitors will be given free sailboat rides.

During the afternoon, races will be run off in both the catboat and jibsail divisions completing the summer's racing program. Cups will be awarded the winners in both divisions at the formal ceremonies at 4:30.

A picnic for members of the club and their guests will be held at Orphanknoll near the docks following the ceremony.

Purpose of the event, Pollock explained, is to acquaint the public with efforts of the club to improve recreational facilities at Charles Mill Lake.

Commodore of the club, which boasts more than 35 sailing craft, is Thomas Nielson, Ashland. Other officers are August Gretegut, Ashland, vice-commodore, Glen Macy, Mansfield, secretary-treasurer, and W. R. Wixon, assistant secretary-treasurer.

LEGION URGES YOUTH DRAFT

Conscription of Nation's Manpower Called For By Veterans.

(By United Press)

KANSAS CITY—The American Legion wants the United States to step up its war effort by drafting 18 and 19 year old youths immediately and by effecting total mobilization of manpower.

Before the 24th annual national American Legion convention adjourned yesterday, the Legionnaires adopted a strongly worded resolution calling for the immediate drafting of men in the 18 and 19 year old groups to spare family men and for conscription of the nation's resources.

The resolution also asked for one-year's compulsory military training for all American men before their 22nd birthday as a post-war policy.

The Legion recommended that "in order to render complete service to the country it is necessary that there be enacted a national service law whereby manpower may be assigned and utilized in war production wherever and whenever it is needed, just as assignment is made of manpower to the armed forces."

The 1,500 delegates to the calmest convention the Legion ever had left for their homes last night after Roane Waring of Memphis, Tenn., was elected national commander by acclamation to succeed Lynn U. Stambaugh, Fargo, N. D.

No town was designated for the 1943 convention, and leaders doubted if another convention would be held until after the war.

Chooses Prison Rather Than Jap Evacuation Camp

SAN FRANCISCO —(INS)— Because he is not friendly with the Japanese, a youth of Japanese and Irish ancestry today had chosen to go to prison rather than live in a Japanese evacuation camp.

The youth is Pat Brennan Kawasaki, 21, whose father is Japanese and whose mother is Irish. Both parents are in an Arizona resettlement camp.

Kawasaki was charged with violating military orders banning persons of Japanese ancestry from the west coast military zone by posing as a Mexican. He was arrested two weeks ago while working in a box factory at San Jose.

Kawasaki pleaded guilty and declared:

"I don't want to go to a resettlement camp. It would be different if I was friendly with the Japanese."

CANADA BANS DREISER AFTER HE BLASTS BRITISH 'SNOBS'

(By United Press)

OTTAWA — Novelist Theodore Dreiser, forbidden to make speeches in Canada because he had said in an interview that he "would rather see the Germans in England than those damned, aristocratic, horse-riding snobs there now," was believed en route back to the United States today.

Dreiser, now 71 years old, was to have spoken tonight in Toronto at a forum. After his remarks Minister of Justice Louis S. St. Laurent invoked the defense of Canada act, forbidding him to make speeches, public appearances or statements for publication.

He checked out of his Toronto hotel last night. He had said his speech would have been along the general theme of his statement about the "snobs."

In Toronto, he said that he hoped the Germans would invade England if they beat Russia, because, he said, the British have done nothing except borrow money, planes and men from the United States.

Dreiser spoke of the "unbelievable gall and brass of the English," and said Prime Minister Winston Churchill has no intention of opening a second front.

"So he does nothing except send thousands of Canadians to be slaughtered at Dieppe," he continued. "He didn't send the English. They stay at home and do nothing. Nothing.

"He's afraid the Communists will rule the world."

Hecht arrested Chelcie France, Cleveland, on the charge of speeding 58 miles an hour on Park avenue west. France posted bond and failed to appear in municipal court this morning.

Laff-a-Day

"We don't want any WAAC's!"

Boys and girls of all ages besieged Friendly House after school yesterday to register for handicraft and recreation classes. More than 100 were enrolled in the first hour, according to Russell Gimbel, who added that mothers ran the children a close race when it came to registering for the sewing classes. Interests in sewing has increased due to wartime conservation and many more mothers are expected to join. Registration for all classes will continue until the holidays, Gimbel said, but activity will get underway next week.

When the county 4-H roller skating party at the Coliseum attracted 300 boys and girls last night, more than last year's attendance, County Agent George B. Ganyard decided that tire rationing was responsible for the increase. Although nearly all of the boys and girls had to drive to Mansfield from rural districts, he believes that most of the youngsters have taken no long trips this summer and welcomed the chance to attend a supervised party a few miles from home. "It also shows," he said, "that people will drive to places they want to visit."

War bond rallies conducted in Mansfield and other Ohio cities during the past week by Screen Stars Fred Astaire, Ilona Massey, and Hugh Herbert were credited today with helping to boost the state to a place among the leaders in the sale of bonds and stamps. In Mansfield, the stars conducted rallies a week ago today at the Westinghouse, Mansfield Tire and Rubber company, and Ohio Brass company plants. Also attending the Westinghouse rally by invitation were workers from the Tappan Stove company, Dominion Electrical Manufacturing company, and Humphryes Manufacturing company.

MEETS TONIGHT

Council Takes Up Raleigh Avenue Paving Job.

Several appropriation measures are in the council hopper for consideration at this evening's special meeting called to amend the East Raleigh avenue paving ordinance to permit construction of a 28-foot pavement instead of the 30-foot drive originally specified.

One measure asks $1,000 for the police motor maintenance fund, another would transfer $250 from the general fund "in the matter of new police cruisers," a third asks $75 for new police furniture and repairs. There also is a request for $300 by the street department for weed cutting.

An additional $1,500 for the car rail reclamation project is asked by City Engineer W. C. Statler and Service Director Fred B. Wolff. Originally $800 was alloted for this purpose. Outstanding checks will bring receipts to around $2,000, Statler says, and the appropriation will permit further salvage.

KIDNAP VICTIM OF 1933 DIES

Illinois Banker Once Was Held For $100,000 Ransom.

ALTON, Ill. — (AP) — August Luer, 86-year-old Alton banker and meat packer who was held for $100,000 ransom in 1933 but was released unharmed, died in Memorial hospital today.

Luer, then 77, was dragged from his home the night of July 10, 1933 by a woman and two men. Mrs. Luer, 75, was knocked down by one of the abductors and suffered a scalp wound. She died in 1939.

Ransom demands were sent to the family, intermediaries named to negotiate with the kidnapers and then Luer was released July 16 near Collinsville. Members of the family said not a cent of ransom was paid.

Five men and a woman were convicted of the kidnaping and sentenced to prison in the fall of 1933.

USES POTATO MASHER WITH GOOD EFFECT

Overpowers Youths Who Had Terrorized Family With Rifle and Shotgun.

(By United Press)

GENEVA, Ill.—An angry farmer, swinging a heavy potato masher, thwarted the apparent kidnaping plot of two youths who had held members of his family at gunpoint for five hours, authorities said today.

The farmer was Edward O'Connell, 44, who had employed the youths, Merrill Smith, 17, and Fred (Lucky) Dubay, 16, to work on his farm near here.

O'Connell left his home yesterday, leaving his wife, Jessie, 43, alone. His children, Mary Catherine, 14, Sue, 12, and Edward, 6, were at school. Smith, son of an Aurora, Ill., real estate man, and Dubay, who later identified himself as a fugitive from a reformatory at South Windham, Me., were digging potatoes.

Mrs. O'Connell told authorities that she had admitted the youths to the house when they asked for a drink and that they had seized her husband's shotgun and rifle.

"They tied me to a chair," she said, "and both of them kept poking the guns at me and asking which child I would prefer having kidnaped. I told them I loved them all. Lucky then said they would take Mary Catherine."

Mrs. O'Connell's father, Charles Brackett, 74, telephoned from his home. One of the youths answered and, when Brackett appeared suspicious, drew Mrs. O'Connell to the telephone, warning her not to reveal her predicament.

But when Brackett asked if she were in trouble, she answered, "Yes."

Brackett drove to the O'Connell farm with his daughter, Harriet, 35, stopping to pick up O'Connell at a blacksmith shop.

When they reached the farm they were confronted by the armed youths. Dubay allegedly fired at Brackett's feet when Brackett reached for a shotgun in his car.

Then Smith and Dubay kept the family at gunpoint in the house, while they presumably waited for the children to return from school.

O'Connell was allowed to prepare lunch. His wife was permitted to hang laundry in the yard while he washed the dishes.

O'Connell watched Smith closely. When the youth turned his head, the farmer grabbed a wooden potato masher and slugged him. Smith attempted to fire the rifle, but Brackett knocked it upward while O'Connell continued pounding the youth on the head.

Dubay ran into the house, fired the shotgun wildly and fled. A group of farmers found him later hiding in an oat bin. He surrendered without resistance.

Smith was taken to an Aurora hospital with a possible skull fracture, while Dubay was questioned by authorities.

Saltzgaber, City Fireman 27 Years, Plans To Retire

Captain Leo Saltzgaber, who began his career 27 years ago as a driver of horse-drawn fire fighting apparatus, will leave the city service Oct. 1, if his resignation, which was on Mayor W. J. Locke's desk today, is accepted.

Saltzgaber indicated he will apply for retirement pension benefits. For the time being, he said, he will be content to "putter around the house and yard" where he lives at 8 Summit Court.

Thrills were many for Saltzgaber in the days when he piloted horses through city streets, the beating hooves and clanging of bells stirring an excitement which "doesn't seem to come from the sirens of motor equipment of today," Saltzgaber said.

In the winter of 1917-18 Saltzgaber was furloughed for three months after his hands were frozen while fighting flames which destroyed an upholstering plant on East Fifth street. This was his only serious injury, he said, in nearly three decades of service.

'FAIR IS OUR LAND,' NEW ON LIBRARY LIST

Beauties of America Are Described in Volume By Samuel Chamberlain.

The incalculable beauty of America from Maine to Puget Sound is caught in "Fair Is Our Land," a new book at the Mansfield Public Library, edited by Samuel Chamberlain.

More than 357 brilliant etchings and photographs are embraced between the covers including the American coastlines, cross sections of life in towns and villages, the farm, prairies, rivers, lakes, mountains and forests.

Another story, "The Raft," by Robert Trumbull, deals with an incident of the present World war. It tells the experiences of three navy fliers, who, when their plane was forced down in the Pacific, battled the sea for 34 days, without food, water, equipment or clothes.

ONE PAIR OF FEET by Monica Dickens, author of "One Pair of Hands"—the entertaining story of her career in the sculleries of the great, is a delightful expose of the hospital world. Monica Dickens, great granddaughter of Charles Dickens, chose nursing as her first real war work, and this new book tells the informal and amusing story of her adventures and misadventures at the Queen Adelaide of Redwood near London.

Two new books are being added to the John Baxter Black collection at the library.

The second addition to the Black collection is THE SELECTED WORKS OF STEPHEN VINCENT BENET. This is published in two volumes, one containing his poetry, the other his prose.

OTHER NON-FICTION:

I DIVE FOR THE TREASURE by Riesberg; SHARK! SHARK! by Young; AMATEUR SEAMAN by Smith; COUNTRY POEMS by Coatsworth; WALTER RAUSCHENBUSH by Sharpe.

THE DRUMS OF MORNING by Philip Van Dorne Stern is the story of the anti-slavery movement from 1837 to the end of the Civil war. Across its great canvas moves its hero, Jonathan Bradford—a character credible and honestly appealing throughout. His story—packed full of historical adventures and dramatic romance—is authentic in background and ranges from intellectual Boston to exotic, plague-ridden New Orleans.

THE MAN WHO KILLED THE DEER by Frank Walters is the story of Martiniano, the Pueblo Indian, who was sent by the government to the "away school" and who, upon his return, found himself an outcast. His love for a girl from another tribe, his slaying of a deer, and the struggle with the government for the Indians' sacred place, are all woven into the pattern of his spiritual conflict in this sympathetic and under standing narrative of the American Indian.

THE COPPER POT by Oliver La Farge has for its background the French Quarter in New Orleans and is the story of the development of Tom Hartshorn, a young artist reared in the best New England tradition, who is plunged into the unconventional world of painters, sculptors and writers.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1942.

It is time to face the cold facts of what will happen unless we at home work and give with the same spirit shown by the fighting men who are giving their lives.—Gov. Robert A. Hurley.

Equinox Marks Crucial War Stage

AT THIS season of the autumnal equinox, when summer merges into fall, it is interesting to note the comment of Major Paul C. Raborg, author and military analyst, who says that "back through the ages history shows that the seasons of the equinoxes have frequently brought forth a turn of world events."

As seen by Major Raborg: "The desperate summer of 1942 for the Allies is at its conclusion and HERR HITLER HAS LOST.

"No one is more susceptible to the belief of astrological cause and effect than the fuehrer," the major continues. "He knows that throughout this past fateful summer Axis advances have been too slow and the Nazi price paid has been too great . . . by next spring the United Nations will be prepared to assume the decisive offensive on all fronts."

But to this optimistic forecast Major Raborg appends a warning that dare not be disregarded. He says: "We are in the worst war history has yet known. Casualties will be heavier, in men and material, than in any conflict in the past. We will win if we're tough—remember, tougher than our enemies. It's a war of brutality . . . the United Nations must fight this war with a view of producing terror in the hearts of our enemies. This can only be done by strangling them in their own type of conflict, which means no holds are barred. . . . The Axis nations have set the pattern of this new war. We must take the lead in their pattern of brutality."

While adjustment to this line of thinking is difficult for the non-militaristic mind, Axis fighting methods, wherever demonstrated, have proved that attainment of superior military strength, with attendant slaughter, is the only possible way to victory for the United Nations, and this is the course that must be pursued in order to restore peace and orderly government in the shortest practicable time.

Ruling Benefits Coffee Hoarders

THE THEORY upon which the Ohio Office of Price Administration bases its ruling that stores cannot require purchase of other goods, by persons who wish to buy nothing more than a pound or more of coffee, is all right—that is, it would be perfectly proper under normal conditions.

Just now such a ruling is "all wet"—as it is making it possible for hoarders to go from one store to another and buy nothing more than a pound of coffee at each place—a practice that would be materially reduced if a pound of coffee was a part of a regular grocery order instead of a total purchase.

In many instances grocers are unable to obtain more than enough coffee to supply their own regular patrons and, in some instances, have adopted the policy of having no coffee in sight and being "out," except to bona fide customers.

Present and prospective coffee supplies are reported sufficient to meet all legitimate needs—but not to the extent of accommodating all the selfish hoarders who have been buying far in excess of current needs.

Advises Simple Descriptive Words

AN APPEAL to return to use of simpler words in describing war action comes from Dr. Gilbert Murray, of Oxford, England, world famous scholar.

He believes that superlatives are becoming so commonplace that they are losing effectiveness and that readers are no longer greatly impressed by such words as "appalling," "devastating," "annihilating," and the like.

As Dr. Murray views it, the war drama is so vast that the human mind is not able to comprehend it, and simplest speech, even to the extent of understatement, is most graphic and moving.

The idea seems worth trying, at least to the extent of reserving overworked polysyllables for occasions that justify extra emphasis, so that other happenings may be fairly considered as to relative importance.

Be Your Real Self

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

QUEER thing about people— Some of them are so intensely alive . . . so compelling in their aliveness. They need not be noisy, assertive people. To the contrary, they are often quiet people with a natural, simple manner. But there is some quality about them which leaves its impress. If they merely enter a room you notice them, find yourself wondering about them . . . often confiding in them after the slightest acquaintance.

Then there are other people, equally intelligent . . . quite as good looking . . . who leave no impression. Try as they may—and often they make desperate efforts to obtain attention—they remain vague, insignificant.

Those good-looking, well-groomed, amiable, sufficiently smart young men who, somehow, never managed to get or hold decent jobs—

Those nicely dressed, friendly young women who, for some mysterious reason, never find mates

—WHY? What's the matter with such people?

They're not real.

They're actually not alive, even to themselves!

They, too, feel that vagueness which baffles you—flounder miserably in it—fight it despairingly.

This thing Life . . . to be alive so that others feel your life, follow it . . . what is it? How's it done? Not just by being born. Pigs and puppies—they, too, are born, but they do not radiate life. Not just by eating, sleeping, playing, working—a brute or an idiot can do these things yet remain as meaningless as any clod or carrot.

Not even by saying the right words, wearing the right clothes, using the right gestures—an ape can do as much, and get no further with it. Nor even by wishing frantically for life—reading about it—clipping bits of poetry.

You can only COME ALIVE in one way and that is—BY LIVING.

REAL living. Not aping somebody else's modes and mannerisms . . . copying somebody else's "line" . . . quoting someone else's thoughts . . . following somebody else's record. These are the popular things to do today, for this is the synthetic age.

STUDY any class of high school youngsters. Nine out of ten of them are imitating someone—some movie star or actress, some popular hero. Look at any file of office workers. Nine out of ten of them are following some prescribed ritual for success.

How often do you find a person, who dares to be himself, think his own thoughts, follow his own impulses, use his own gestures, build his own assets? Copycat stuff—it's interesting and artful, but it doesn't work. It doesn't—it can't—give life meaning, because it's not real.

YOUR LIFE HAS MEANING ONLY TO THE EXTENT THAT IT IS REAL. You live only to the extent that you are real.

Why do some people stand out—others remain vague? That's why. The distinctive people mean something in themselves because they ARE THEMSELVES. They aren't just an echo—they are originals. You may like or dislike them, but you are never in doubt of them. They are REAL.

The others? They move in a dream—have the vague unreality of a dream—because they have never dared to come alive . . . never dared BE THEMSELVES.

If you want to live and make others feel and follow your life, snap out of your dreams, cut out your act and—BE REAL. What kind of real? YOUR kind of real. One honest turnip is worth a ton of synthetic orchids.

Health And Diet

Some Causes Of Foot Pains.

—By DR. CLENDENING

THE FEET are complicated structures. No two persons' feet are exactly alike and every person's foot changes during his adult life to adapt itself to the use it gets. Sherlock Holmes could tell a man's occupation by his hands. He could do so equally well by examining the feet.

The clerk in a store, who has to be on his feet all day, has an entirely different foot from the desk worker, and indeed a standing occupation leads to different adjustments than occur in the feet of people whose occupation requires continual walking.

What Is an "Ideal Foot?"

The ideal foot is purely a matter of definition. For a person of given height and weight the exact point where the most strain occurs can be calculated to within a spot the size of a penny, on the heel, the instep and the ball of the toes. But everyone hasn't toe bones of exactly the same length, nor heel bones of exactly the same size. They try to make adjustment and sometimes the adjustment isn't entirely successful.

Strain, increasing weight and a faulty shoe probably cause more foot pain than anything else. The strain may begin as an accident so trivial as to result in neglect.

With increasing weight a person needs to have a shoe with a base large enough to afford support. This is especially true of the heels of women's shoes. If you will take the trouble to make an impression of the heel of a high-heeled woman's shoe on a piece of paper and compare it with the impression of the heels of a man's shoes, you will find that in area the woman's is less than a quarter of the size.

Diseased Conditions.

Diseased conditions, of course, are quite as frequent causes of painful feet as strain; but a strain is often the beginning of a diseased condition. The foot has arthritis just as much or more so than any other set of joints. The constant rubbing and contact with hard and uneven surfaces creates roughness that turns into arthritis.

Disturbances In Occupied Areas May Be of Military Value Soon

—By FREDERICK C. OECHSNER

REPORTS of fresh disturbances in France, Norway and other occupied countries are a hopeful sign, for they are an important part of the outside pressure which ultimately will help to crack Nazi Germany.

Revolt in the occupied areas will accelerate when the military tide turns definitely against Germany and may be counted upon as an actual military factor by engaging troops and by actively helping an enemy invading Germany. Meanwhile, such unrest is of chief value as an irritant and by slowing up production in some cases.

In the present "wave" reported from London there is no apparent evidence of concerted activity as there was in outbreaks shortly after Germany invaded Russia which were obviously the result of orders from Moscow. Many of the Communist leaders were executed at that time and their underground groups broken up by secret police. At least some of the inspiration of the current disturbances, however, must be credited to the Russians, if only to their holding at Stalingrad.

As a matter of fact, activity in occupied countries often reflects sensitively the turn of events elsewhere about which the populations learn quickly and fully, despite German efforts to prevent it. They learn by radio and by printed matter smuggled across the frontiers. Circulation of news by word of mouth is unbelievably rapid.

In every one of Hitler's occupied countries there are patriotic organizations, however small, however repressed, devoted to the expression of open hatred and resistance of the Nazi occupiers.

Sometimes foreign propagandists have served them badly, if unintentionally, by encouraging their activities at specific places or plants. Such encouragement has only served as a tipoff to the Germans who have redoubled their vigilance at the points mentioned.

The best way to encourage sabotage and sedition is to finance it and arm it secretly.

It usually takes time for the resentment of occupied countries to express itself violently or openly. I have seen this slow smoldering in Denmark, Holland, Belgium, France, Czechoslovakia and Poland, and its pattern is pretty much the same.

First the people are so stunned by the impact of blitzkrieg that they have no initiative. Usually, too, they are enormously surprised and relieved that German troops have not butchered the civilian population. Fear of massacre impelled probably half of the people who fled Paris, I have been told.

The occupying forces always are extremely, even exaggeratedly, "correct" in their attitude. They scamper around like innocent tourists taking snapshots of monuments and public buildings. With good-natured exuberance they buy in the shops, paying in "occupation money."

Behind the scenes, the secret police and the SS move in to "assist" the local police in preserving order and the real economic locusts move in to co-operate on a "friendly basis" in running the country's business. This means buying into industry and business so heavily that the country's currency and economy become "pegged" to Germany's. Settlement of accounts is often to be only after the war. It is obviously to that country's interest to see that Germany wins the war.

Tolerance on the part of the occupied country begins to run thin with the first pinches of hunger. The Nazis will not perhaps have stolen food reserves outright and during the invasion they will, with an exquisite regard for ethics, have fed themselves without plundering the land. But the final result is always the same and a desperate and angry people begin killing sentries on street corners, planting explosive charges. Hostages are taken and executed. There are new killings, new executions, in a vicious circle.

The whole system is an intolerable one whether the people are Norwegians or Greeks and, as the war drags, dooms Hitler's dream of any "neuordnung" in Europe. There is not a country today which is spontaneously co-operating with Hitler or where the people believe in his aims any longer, not even in Italy, Hungary, Rumania, or Bulgaria, his allies.

But there is little they can do, for the police power is too great. Meanwhile those sporadic outbursts we read about are like nothing so much as little spurts of flame licking out of the crevices in a hot volcanic earth.

Finland Tires of Nazi Hook-Up, Asks Only for Lasting Security

—By DE WITT MACKENZIE

THE FINNISH minister to Washington, Hjalmar J. Procope, has dropped a bomb big enough to reverberate in many capitals, both Axis and Allied, in his announcement that "Finland wants to cease fighting as soon as the threat to her existence has been averted and guarantees secured for her lasting security."

If we label this extraordinary move as a fishing expedition for a peace offer, we probably shall encounter an official denial from Helsinki. Still, that's exactly what it looks like—a trial peace balloon. Between the lines there seems to lurk the hope that Uncle Sam will overlook that Finland is an ally of the Hitler he has sworn to crush, and will persuade the Russians to make some proposal.

It might seem that it didn't matter a great deal whether tiny Finland waged war or not. But Finland is a mighty atom in this conflict. The safety of Russia's whole right flank from Leningrad to the Arctic is involved.

Peace would be calculated to relieve the pressure on the Red lifeline port of Murmansk, which the Nazis are attacking from Finnish soil. It would ease the whole situation in the Gulf of Finland.

Why should the Finns suddenly decide to get from under? It's only 15 months ago that they cast their lot with the Nazis in the face of American and British warnings. That was when Hitler's troops were grinding all Europe under their hob-nailed boots, and there was nothing in sight to stop them.

One can see several reasons why the Finns might want peace. One is that the Finns may now see themselves allied with a loser.

Then, too, we have the notable coincidence of heavy Red attacks, against the Finns recently, which speak stoutly of the Russians ability to carry on the war. The resources of the little country must be running very low, and there has been a terrible drain on their manpower. The Germans can't help them much with supplies.

The Finns undoubtedly are anxious to regain the friendship of the United States. It was a sad day when our little colleague, whose loyalty we had boasted and toasted, joined hands with the arch enemy of Christendom. The Finns said they had to do it to adjust their mighty grievance against Russia. But Uncle Sam and John Bull didn't figure it that way. Finland—or was it largely Baron Mannerheim? — made a terrible mistake.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—If you are on the uncalled selective service roles or have relatives or a sweetheart there, the best thing you can do at the moment is not let the smoke screen of confusion get you down.

Selective service is in that state of flux which has come to almost everything in the United States war plans. The trouble is that we started building on a foundation far too small and weak for the superstructure this war demands. Now, to save the whole business from collapsing, we have to jack up what building we have and slide a new foundation under it.

That already has happened in war industry and it isn't certain yet that the foundation is big enough to carry the load. That is what is happening now in the efforts to solve the problems of inflation and of rubber. That is what is going to happen to manpower—both manpower for the armed forces and manpower for production of supplies for those forces.

IT MAY be done by a complete overhauling of the existing policies of deferment. It may be done by new legislation. But a sure sign that it will be done is the confusion of thought now emanating from Washington.

Out of the muddle, there are a few things that are becoming pretty certain in the minds of closest Washington observers.

(1.) Unless this war collapses within a year, we are going to have an army of 10,000,000 men or more—about two and a half times what we now have.

(2). The 18-19 year old lads will be drafted after the first of the year. There are about 1,000,000, perhaps 1,500,000 in this group. (Committee hearings are starting now on this legislation in both houses of congress.)

(3). There undoubtedly will be a suspension of recruiting. The Navy policy (all navy personnel so far is recruited) is all that is holding this up now. The reason for stopping voluntary enlistments is the necessary control of all available manpower. (Shortages of manpower in many communities and a number of industries already have occurred because the boys dashed to the colors before they were called.)

(4). Unmarried men with dependents and married men without children will be called eventually, probably soon, but close attention will be given to avoiding actual hardship cases. (This is just about draft headache No. 1, although there are no priorities on headaches in selective service.)

(5). It is possible that the present size of the Army can be a little better than doubled before it will be necessary to call married men with children. When that time will come is uncertain and can only be guessed at by adding up selective service estimates. Best guess: the end of 1943.

Other than this there is very little worth considering in the prognostications on the future of selective service.

A Farmer's Diary

Signs and Tokens

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

SOUTH of here, in a Pennsylvania Dutch community, I talked with a farmer who was plowing his field with a large draft team of three horses and an old Oliver walking plow.

Occasionally the share would hit a stone and knock the plow completely from the furrow—then he would stop the team, pull it back, and begin over. I noticed the fallowed land had no broken furrow slices, and I thought, a little proudly, "My father taught me to do this same thing, when I first began to plow. It's a good Dutch custom."

I waited till he made the round. Then the team approached, with their three pairs of ears forward at attention, rushing the plowman rapidly to the place I stood. To them I was the token of at least a short respite from pulling. The farmer said "Whoa," in a voice that gave evidence of weariness.

He was a tall, slender, stoop-shouldered man, past middle age. His kindly grey eyes looked down into mine. I loved the open frankness of his face, felt I knew him at face value, and was satisfied. After conversing for some time, he suddenly asked, "And where were you born?"

I told him, "In Bedford County, Pennsylvania, near the village of Woodbury."

"Why—" he exclaimed, "we were born only ten miles apart!" Eagerly we shook hands again. We found our parents had been acquaintances, we had drank from the same springs, traveled the same highways, traded at the same stores when we were boys. We sat there on the beam of the old plow and talked until the sun was getting low. "Fair weather sky," he said, indicating the horizon. "Us farmers will have to learn how to predict our own weather, since wartime."

"How does the war affect you?" I inquired.

"I wouldn't 'a needed to work like this, myself, if my two boys were here. I knew it'd happen two years ago. One night on our way home from church, the whole northern sky was red and blue with flames like fire. We watched it until after twelve. Flames from the east flashed against the west till it looked like seas of blood. I told my wife then that my parents saw that sign before the Civil war—and three of pap's brothers got killed before 'twas over. Pap used to tell how he was plowing and heard noises. Grandpap heard 'em, too. And believe it or not, last fall when I plowed for wheat in that field yonder, every round or two I heard a sound like a gun going off along the furrow. Nobody was around—and I didn't tell anybody but my wife—but it must have been a 'token'."

"The food we produce on our farms is the best kind of dynamite," I told him. "Every farmer who keeps his acres busy is a bad token for our enemies and a good sign for the American way of life."

What Answer Would You Give?

WHAT IS A MAN, who signs himself, "A worried patriotic citizen," to do under circumstances stated in a letter which has just reached this desk?

Some thoughts will be given here, but as it is a situation which probably confronts a number of readers, it appears a matter of sufficient interest to invite other expressions of views on the subject.

The writer's dilemma, as he explains it, has to do with his effort to budget 10 per cent of his income for purchase of war savings bonds—which, he says, "has caused me restless sleeping and constant figuring."

It appears that this man is working for a salary "that has not been and is not being increased, and which is now budgeted up to about the last penny."

Further detail is that two members of his family require constant medical treatment, as well as expensive medication; that there is also requirement for necessary repairs on his home, and that one child must complete the last year of special educational training before receiving any revenue.

"I want to be patriotic and buy bonds," he says, "but how could I possibly pledge 10 per cent and still meet my present obligations?"

A DIFFICULTY immediately encountered in attempting to answer this question results from absence of information as to size of salary, cost of home upkeep in its relationship to income, possible reducible expenses, and some other elements which enter into so-called "American standards of living."

A surmise, based on the tone and construction of the letter, is that the writer has a high school education, or better; is above middle age; that there are several children in the family; that he owns his own home or is making payments thereon; that he pays income tax and has already purchased some war savings bonds.

If, as he carefully re-checks his budget and finds therein no non-essential items ("non-essential" meaning wartime economizing, not normal spending), it appears that here is an instance in which bond-buying must be adapted to individual finances rather than made to accord with a percentage formula.

There are minimum requirements in living costs which cannot be ignored, and there is also the obligation to pay bills and meet family and home expenses, which sometimes bear heavily on persons working for low or moderate salaries which do not respond to increases in the cost of living—as is frequently the case with wages.

MANY who buy bonds to the extent of 10 per cent of their income will find it necessary to deprive themselves of other things that they would like to have—but which they do not really NEED—while others can invest much more than 10 per cent of their income in bonds without making serious sacrifice.

Some who cannot buy their full quota of bonds—as in the case of the writer of the letter herein referred to—may find opportunity to do some kind of civilian service which will more than compensate for inability to give as much financial support to the war effort as they would like.

It is only fair that those who are so fortunately situated as to be able to invest more than 10 per cent of their income in war bonds do so, in order that the average may be maintained and the needs of the nation met.

For, in the final analysis, no sacrifices which a free people will be called upon to make will be comparable to the suffering that would result from an Axis victory—and the war is still far from being won by the United Nations.

TIRED GERMANS BOGGING DOWN AT STALINGRAD

Russians Counter Attack as Nazis Are Halted in Tracks Near City.

cality. The Red army was said to have broken into enemy positions and pressed the Germans back, killing 200.

The high command said that the gallant defenders of Stalingrad had succeeded in repulsing all enemy assaults and had driven the Germans back at several points in bloody street fighting.

A force of 1,000 German shock troops and tanks attempted to smash through the streets of Stalingrad ablaze and choked with rubble to capture key buildings but found the Soviet defense lines impassable and retreated after suffering heavy losses, field dispatches said.

The entire city, with all women and children evacuated, was turned into an armed camp as the battle for the great industrial center on the Volga raged on into the 29th day and neared a climax.

The bark of large German siege guns was answered uninterruptedly by the booming of huge Soviet artillery as all able-bodied men joined in the fray to keep the Nazis from gaining control of the city.

Although the situation at Stalingrad admittedly remained critical neutral observers in the Soviet capital, following closely reports of the staunch Soviet resistance which had held the Germans in check for more than 24 hours, voiced the opinion that battle weary Nazi forces possibly may crack in the face of the new strength being shown by the Russians.

It was pointed out that should the Germans, as in the case of Leningrad, be forced to abandon their all-out attempt to seize the city their failure would result in the greatest German military defeat in the long Russian campaign.

An official Soviet communique said that the ferocity of the battle continued unabated as the Germans pressed several new attacks. All were repelled, the high command added.

Defensive actions were fought by the Russians southeast of the fallen Black sea naval base of Novorossisk in the western Caucasus, it was admitted. Here, it was said, the Soviets killed 50 Germans and blew up a munitions dump. A party of Soviet marines was said to have ambushed a German force in this area, killing numerous Nazis.

Considerable action was taking place in the vicinity of Voronezh, 300 miles northwest of Stalingrad, on the Leningrad front and just northwest of Moscow in the Rzhev sector.

The Moscow radio said that Soviet troops had advanced on several sectors of the Volkhov front east of Leningrad while the official communique reported that around Smyavino, 60 miles southeast of the former czarist capital several German counter-attacks were repulsed

Says Bombs Can Destroy Germany

LONDON—(AP)—The conviction that it is possible to destroy Germany from the air has been expressed by Brig. Gen Ira C. Eaker, chief of the AEF bomber command, who holds that the necessary forces "will be rapidly assembled."

General Eaker, who was nominated for promotion to a major generalcy by President Roosevelt yesterday, declared in an interview published by the London Daily Mail that the enemy would fall before a sufficiently powerful series of vertical assaults.

"By destroying his munitions plants and communications you can bring his armies to a halt," he said.

"By destroying his shipyards you can make it impossible for him to build submarines."

The general said "there is hardly a corner of Germany" which United States bombers would not reach within the next few months.

Discrepancy Seen In Raid Reports

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts) — (AP) — DNB, official German news agency, said today that British planes raided the Schleswig-Holstein area last night.

The agency said the raiders were few, however, and called the forays "nuisance flights."

London, however, reported that the RAF confined itself last night to mine-laying in the waters off the German North sea coast, because of bad weather.

Declares Finnish Policy Unchanged

HELSINKI, Finland—(Delayed) —(AP)—A Finnish foreign office spokesman asserted today there had been no change in Finnish policy since rejection last November of an American proposal that Finland withdraw from the war against Soviet Russia.

His statement was made in comment on the observation last Saturday in Washington by Finnish Minister Hjalmar J. Procope that "Finland wants to cease fighting as soon as the threat to her existence has been averted and guarantees obtained for her lasting security."

The minister, the spokesman said, couldn't have meant anything except that Finland would be ready to lay down arms only when the Russian threat to Finnish security had been liquidated.

He added that Finland had neither given nor received any peace proposals.

Contrary to the report broadcast by the Berlin radio Sunday, he said the Finnish government had issued no denial of Minister Procope's statement.

BATTLING FOR HIGHER PARITY

Farm Bloc Fights For Upward Revision of Price Basis In Anti-Inflation Bill.

terms of the pending bill, it would become the lowest point at which price ceilings would be placed on farm products by President Roosevelt in carrying out the prospective congressional directive to stabilize prices, wages and salaries.

Despite the president's assertion that he was "unalterably opposed" to any change in the basis of computing parity, Senators Hatch (D., N. M.) and Thomas (D., Okla.) submitted amendments which would include farm labor costs for the first time in computing parity.

This would boost the parity base 4 6 per cent on the average, raising the lowest point of farm price ceilings under the new bill a like amount.

Farm state senators indicated dissatisfaction, meanwhile, with a provision approved by the banking committee which would permit the president to take into account increased labor costs in adjusting the maximum price ceilings on agricultural commodities.

The senate heard opposition expressed yesterday by Senators Johnson (R., Calif.) and O'Daniel (D., Texas) to the proposed broad grant of powers to the president but proceeded methodically to adopt banking committee amendments on virtually unanimous voice votes.

One amendment thus tentatively approved would authorize and direct the president to act on or before Nov. 1 to stabilize prices, wages and salaries so far as practicable on the basis of levels which existed on Sept. 15.

Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) succeeded in amending another section to make it plain that if subsequent adjustments were made by the president, they must be made not only to to correct inequities but because they were necessary to aid in the effective prosecution of the war.

In order to eliminate a possibility that high salaries might be "frozen" at the Sept. 15 levels, the senate adopted an amendment by Senator Overton (D., La.) permitting employers to reduce salaries of $5,000 a year or more, if they chose, without first obtaining the president's consent.

$140,377 TO BE WAR CHEST GOAL

Amount Includes Community Fund Budget; Drive To Be Staged in November.

the British War Relief, United China Relief, National U. S. O., Greek War Relief and Richland Victory Civic committee. The Greek War Relief budget was set up for only six months in the belief of the committee that the United States government will intercede for the starving population of that county.

Based on the percentages set up by the committee Mansfield will be asked to raise the greatest per cent of the combined Community Fund and War Chest goal of $124,575

Mansfield's share in the War Chest budget was designated at 75 per cent while Shelby was asked to raise 20 per cent and the remainder of the county five per cent.

Based on a figure of $63,210 that includes the budget of all war chest agencies but is exclusive of $10,000 added to Mansfield's share for shrinkage and $2,147 for local U. S. O. purposes the percentage set up by the committee means that Shelby will be asked to raise $12,642 and the county $3,160 of the war chest proper. Mansfield's share of the war chest on this basis is $47,407.

In the case of such agencies as U S. O. and United China Relief, which have already raised their Richland county budgets for the fiscal year running in 1943, allocations will not be made from the War Chest until the end of the fiscal year for each of these organizations

All funds for the Mansfield Community Fund budget of $65,020 will be derived from the Mansfield area. The same will be true of Shelby's Community Fund drive to be staged in conjunction with the War Chest campaign in that area. All money raised in the county outside of Shelby and Mahsfield will go to War Relief.

No agencies participating in the Community Fund and War Chest campaigns may accept funds from benefits or permit their names to be used in connection with benefits. The Richland County Civic Victory committee however will continue to receive money from the salvage of scrap but will not ask for contributions from individuals or groups or participate in benefits of any kind.

Agencies admitted to and their allocations are as follows:

British War Relief	$ 4,697
United China Relief	4,697
Dutch, Queen Wilhelmina	335
Greek War Relief	4,026
Polish War Relief	1,342

National U S .O	21,472
Richland Victory Civic	4,000

Total For County	$ 63,210
Add For Mansfield:

Total War Chest For Mansfield and Richland County	$ 75,357
Community Fund	$ 65,020

SEES BIGGER NAVAL ACTION

Vinson Declares Dieppe Just Forecast of Attacks as FDR Boosts Appropriation.

he said, "it is sea-power that will launch it. Sea-power will transport the men and material needed to the point of attack To keep them flowing in an unbroken stream until the whole Axis edifice has crashed, American and the other United Nations must have seapower in overwhelming strength, far beyond challenge by any force that Berlin, Rome and Tokyo can bring against it."

Already, he declared, we have taken the offensive in the Solomons and "there for the first time we have wrested the initiative from the enemy, and our new navy should enable us to retain the initiative right to the end."

On June 30, 1931, Vinson said, a United States not at war had 697 combat, auxiliary, patrol and mine vessels building, while on June 30, 1942, there were 3,230 vessels in this category under construction in addition to 218 being built for Allied Nations. This, he added, does not include 11,659 smaller vessels under construction.

Counting all types of planes, he went on, "We added 4,895 new aircraft to the navy's air arm in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1942, as compared with 2,067 in the preceding year."

Plant expansion, he said, "is rapidly building up to an output of just under 2,000 navy planes a month," with the navy "bearing its full share of President Roosevelt's program calling for 60,000 planes in 1942 and 125,000 in 1943."

trol planes and carrier based aircraft with heavy losses to the enemy.

Conservative naval men asserted that the last Nipponese task force of battleships and cruisers which retreated a week ago under bombardment by U S. army flying fortresses undoubtedly was not damaged seriously, and that these enemy warships still may be in those waters.

Jap Planes Attack New Guinea Bases

GENERAL M'ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia — (AP)—In their first attack of any strength of Allied positions in New Guinea in two weeks, 27 Japanese bombers, escorted by ten fighter planes, dropped bombs in scrub brush 32 miles northwest of Port Moresby yesterday, but caused neither damage nor casualties, a communique said today.

The jungle battleground where Allied troops have stalled the Japanese drive on Port Moresby is about 32 miles northeast of that Allied base, on the southern side of the Owen Stanley range, but a spokesman said the attack had no direct bearing on the fighting there and the situation was unchanged.

Allied fighter planes swept along the Kokoda track between Kokoda and Buna, Japanese landing base, and destroyed a bridge over the Kumusi river below Kokoda.

An Allied bomber unit made a night attack on the airdrome and dispersal areas of Buka, on the northern tip of the Solomon islands.

CHUNGKING — (INS) — Heavy casualties were inflicted among Japanese personnel when United States bombers carried out a smashing raid against Yochow, railroad junction between Changsha and Hankow, Aug. 11 and huge fires were left by the American planes, it was learned today.

Between 400 and 500 of the enemy were left as casualties after the bombers destroyed warehouses and barracks and left fires that burned throughout the city for 12 hours.

bound to the Anglo-Saxons in "obstinate opposition" to the Nazi new order.

2. Laval knows this and is cooperating with the Germans while at the same time trying to maintain American regulations so that he can hop an Allied bandwagon if necessity requires.

3 Chief of state Marshal Petain is too old to be a factor much longer and Laval doubtless one day will try to succeed him with resulting chaos

Laval never has concealed that he hoped to use German influence, the journal said, to keep from giving anything to Italy, whose aspirations against France form the basis of her territorial hopes

A mounting tide of French opposition to collaboration of any sort meanwhile has spurred into a series of strong measures

Many new police officials have been named, including appointment of former Perfect Bouffet of Rouen, Laval's confident, to take charge of the Seine prefecture, which includes Paris.

Observers here said these appointments were made to cope with the stormy period believed certainly to lie ahead when enforcement of Laval's new compulsory labor law begins.

From where I sit...

by Joe Marsh

IN the square of a little village not far from here I came on the prettiest flower garden you ever saw.

It was a lot of flowers all mixed up—hundreds of different kinds, I guess. So I asked a passerby if he could tell me about it.

"Well," he says, "in this town whenever anybody plants a flower garden and has any seeds left, they scatter them over this plot."

Then he leans over and pulls out a couple of weeds. "We all have to help pull out the weeds too," he tells me. "That way the village has a flower garden to be proud of."

That's about as pretty an illustration of co-operation as I ever come across. But there's plenty of examples of co-operation and civic spirit these days.

We were talking just yesterday about how the brewers and the beer distributors are working together and co-operating with law enforcement authorities.

You see a lot of friendship and fine old customs have grown up around beer. But the weeds—well—they've got to be pulled out, too.

Everybody has to lend a hand. And the brewing industry is just sensible enough to recognize that . . . But what's more—they're doing something about it.

The brewers don't want their beer sold in the wrong kind of places, and so they've teamed up with the authorities in a self-regulation program to make careless beer retailers "clean up or close up," as they say.

From what I read, the plan is working out mighty successful in a number of states, and is spreadin' out into others.

From where I sit, it looks like a fine idea . . . a mighty practical example of how honest co-operation works out to the benefit of everyone—the brewers, the beer retailers, and us plain citizens that like our gardens and our pleasures—with the weeds kept out.

New Jewelry Is From Bahamas

Above, sea shell jewelry; right, seed ensemble; below, pearl seeds and conch shell set.

(International Illustrated News Writer)

NATIVES of the Bahamas, for more than 250 years, have been making floral pieces and costume accessories from the materials they collected from island beaches and from exotic semi-tropical plants.

Until recently these beautiful things were only seen and purchased by tourists, but since the Duchess of Windsor introduced them as a new fashion point in costume jewelry, they are being worn extensively by smart women all over the United States.

Some 15 of the many different types of beautifully tinted shells thrown by the tide on the island beaches are employed in this growing industry, together with the wafer-thin rainbow-tinted scales of fish which hitherto have been famous only among sportsmen.

Until this year the jewelry that was made by the natives featured colors that were suitable only for wear with summer prints. Now, however, the darker colors are employed, and seeds and burrs are combined with the shells and fish to make attractive complements for tweeds and other fall and winter materials. Special designs have also been created for evening wear.

Methods also have been highly improved to enhance the beauty and sturdiness of the articles. This is due to better materials than were used formerly for dyeing and fastening together the shells and seeds.

The three above pictures show distinctly different sets that would look well with suits, dark dresses or almost any fall daytime outfit.

The native jewelry worn with the dark suit coat and blouse consists of a beautiful lei with its matching bracelet and earrings, and is fashioned from "velvet" seeds of the "darling" plum. It is in two-color combinations which harmonize perfectly with the new fabric colors They are blueberry blue and maroon, yellow and olive green, maroon and olive green, black and turf tan, black and olive green

Another set is made of tropic bush pearl seeds and conch shells It is developed in combinations of black and white, jungle brown and orchid, brown and violet, brown and olive green, brown and yellow and brown and chrysanthemum pink

The third necklace, bracelet and earrings set is made of smoothly polished sea shells. It comes in deep fuchsia and brown, and in chartreuse and brown.

Uncle Sam Says Wash Off Makeup

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Your Uncle Sam has in effect, tapped his nieces on the shoulders and said:

"My dears, buy some washcloths, scrub the make-up off your faces. Girls like Molly Pitcher, who helped to win the Revolution, never heard of lipsticks or mascara."

For what else could the old gentleman with the chin whiskers have had in mind when, through his War Production Board, he demanded a sharp curtailment on all sorts of beauty preparations? Lipsticks, rouge, face powders, mascara, and other cosmetics are to be cut to a great degree. The country will thus save for war purposes 17,400,000 pounds of chemicals and other critical war materials.

"But these are essential for combat purposes," the bright young thing, shopping at the cosmetic counter, said; "the oldest recorded combats in history—subjugation of male creatures."

The back-of-the-counter girl, dispensing a limited stock of pretifiers, was holding up a lipstick that verged dangerously on the purple side.

"Well, no one would want that color anyhow," commented the shopper, "There's nothing for me but to take the veil for the duration."

And so your Uncle Sam rips through the entire list with the result that 17 per cent of critical material, based on the use of 2,300,000 gross of cosmetic containers, will be saved the first six months of this year.

In Colonial days, women made most of their toilet preparations at home. Will they revert to great-grandmother's book of "Salves and Simples" or will they do without, or pay whatever these things may cost? What are your reactions, especially the gentlemen? I'd like to hear from you.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, Sept. 23.

A brilliant opening for accomplishing some outstanding performance in the direction of a cherished goal or worthwhile objective is seen from the predominant planetary operations. However, while the aims and ambitions may be lifted to such progress and achievement, there are disruptive or thwarting undercurrents to hinder and postpone if not entirely obstruct. It might be possible to fortify this frustrating situation by the aid of well-established bodies or organizations business, political or fraternal.

Those whose birthday it is might be given the brilliant opportunity to reach a cherished goal of accomplishment or progress, with honors, profit and fulfilled ambitions, but for a matter seeming to obstruct, delay or decisively set aside, at least for the time being. Help may come from peculiar sources, with large organizations or major employers bridging the obstacle, which might possibly be caused by ill-health or a family illness or bereavement. An inheritance or other worthwhile benefit may accrue.

A child born on this day may have much efficiency and high ideals and ambitions, assisted by peculiar or unusual cooperations, although its health or a family affliction may prove an obstructing force. It may inherit or enjoy gifts.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Lillian's calm voice and steady eyes gave me notice that I might expect squalls of varying degrees of violence before I should ride out this storm, if indeed I was not destined to be its victim.

I saw clearly that Lillian was in no mood for emotional appeal.

"I have no doubt you believe everything she told you," I said. "That was one reason my father hesitated to send her over here. He felt, as he did when he sent you to the farm, that your terrific emotional anxiety for Marion would dwarf your common sense and keen perceptions, leaving you an easy victim to Carolyn's machinations."

I put up my hand in a militant gesture as she gave a tempestuous ejaculation.

"You promised to hear me out," I said, "and I have never known you to break your word. But I must warn you that it will not be pleasant to hear what I have to tell, and that it will take a long time. Shall we sit down?"

Without a word she seated herself, and I placed a chair opposite hers, so that my eyes could meet hers in this duel of resolution.

"I see now, Lillian," I began, "that we have been wrong in keeping from you some of the incidents of our investigation into Marion's disappearance."

She kept her word to say nothing, but her eyes flamed angry reproach.

"We knew how much you thought of Carolyn," I went on, "and that we couldn't help find Marion by telling you what we had found out about Carolyn's suspicious activities. So we simply told you the truth, as far it is went—that Carolyn insisted she knew nothing that could shed any light on Marion's disappearance. That was what she protested from the first, but we soon found out she was lying.

Trio to Weirhampton.

"You are not in a mood," I went on, "to listen to any reminder on my part that the search for Marion is my paramount interest just now. But I expect you to be just enough to admit that I have had a good deal of experience with adolescent girls. So shut out prejudice and preconceived ideas if you can, and let me tell you what really happened at Weirhampton, when we went up there to see Carolyn."

Clearly, Lillian was in no mood to give me any co-operation, but her attitude as she settled back in her chair told me that I had scored, if ever so slightly. I felt that while she listened to me, Carolyn's emotional sway over her would be pushed, at least temporarily, into the background.

I do not remember ever working harder at a mental task than I did in recounting our trek from Weirhampton to Dalemont. I omitted no detail, picturing the sordid treatment of Carolyn by the two gangsters in their desperate attempt to get her away from Dicky and me, including the shooting which so nearly cost Dicky his life.

Marion's Loyalty.

I told also of Carolyn's telephone conversation with the young gangster, on which Ronald had eavesdropped, and of Carolyn's attempts to tell the gangster where I was to be seated in the train to New York.

Then I told of the gangster's attempt to get Marion's letter from me, on the train, and his telephoned instructions to a gunman in the city to get the letter and dispose of me at the same time. Then I spoke measuredly:

"That is the man with whom Carolyn wishes to get in contact. She has tried her wiles on everybody else in vain, and now she cunningly has played upon your intense anxiety for Marion.

"But you must believe me, Lillian. To let Carolyn go would not help Marion, and might do her incalculable harm. Besides, we are sure that one reason for Marion's going away was in order to shield Carolyn."

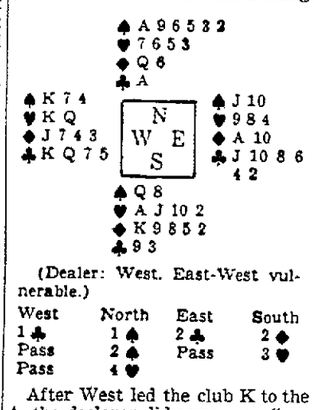
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

YOU CAN'T DO BOTH

Clear-cut decision as to which method you intend to use is vital in the play of most difficult hands. Choosing one course may render the other impossible. Whichever one you embark upon commits you to seeing it through that way, whether it works or not. That applies particularly to the use of the trumps in dummy. Sometimes, if you employ them to ruff a loser or losers in your own hand, you will no longer have them there to use as entries for cashing a long suit. Conversely, if you use them up on straight trump leads, you won't have them for ruffing.



(Dealer: West. East-West vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1 ♣	1 ♠	2 ♣	2 ♦
Pass	2 ♠	Pass	3 ♥
Pass	4 ♥

After West led the club K to the A, the declarer did some very "unthorough" thinking, if there is such a word as that. He saw right away that he could ruff his losing club in dummy, so set out with that in mind, without planning further. To the second trick he finessed the heart J, the Q winning, and won the returned diamond 3 with the K when East held up his A over the Q. Then he led the club 9 to be ruffed by the heart 5.

Now he worked on the spades, leading the 2 to the Q and K. The next diamond caused East to win the Q with the A and return the spade J to the A. On the spade 9, East discarded, so the diamond 5 was thrown off. The heart 6 to the A killed the K. The diamond 8 was ruffed by the heart 7 and over-ruffed by the 9. The club J was then ruffed by the heart 2 and the heart 10 cashed, but the diamond 9 then had to be lost to the J, setting the contract.

Careful planning could have shown the declarer that his sole chance lay in running spades after trumps were out. Had he taken the opening club, lost the heart finesse to the Q, won the returned diamond as he did, then dropped trumps with the A and 10, he would have had the fourth trump in dummy for a re-entry to cash spades. Then he could have led the spade Q, West covering and the A winning. The spade 2 could have been given up to the J, and he would then have been okeh. East could have cashed the diamond A, but now the late ruff of a club could have put declarer in dummy to run the good spades, discarding all of the losing diamonds on them.

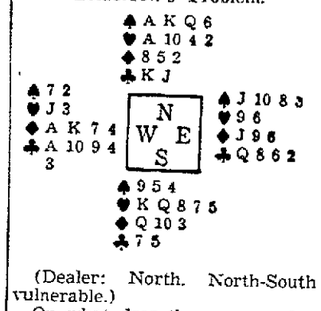
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

On what does the success of a 4-Heart contract by South on this deal depend? How can West make it either easier or harder for South to succeed?

PASSING DREAM

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

(Copyright, 1942.)

CHAPTER I.
Wanted: a Kiss.

In an old brick house in a northern college town Edith Graves surveyed her family assembled for Christmas dinner. The sight gave her keen pleasure and stirred the deep sentimentality which she had learned to keep to herself since any display of it obviously embarrassed her modern children. A pretty, capable-looking woman, tall with clear skin and short brown hair and contemplative dark eyes, she gazed down the long, laden table in the center of which was a diminutive silver tree trimmed with diminutive red balls. The tree so excluded from view her oldest child and only son, Ron, that she could see only the top of his handsome dark head. Yet even the sight of that, after too long an absence, was reassuring.

She sighed both from fatigue (she had been up since six) and from the disquieting thoughts that this Christmas of 1940 awakened. Yes, it was as if those disturbing thoughts were awakening after a sleep of twenty-odd years which most simple folk had hoped would be eternal. For indeed they seemed incredibly close, those other Christmases when the first war had been raging on the "other side." She had been a wife and mother then so that the war had not touched her personally and actively. And in this war, she thought with immense gratitude, Ron was a husband and father and the other two were girls. Mercifully war cannot take or touch girls. . .

Mrs. Hallett, her mother, prim and pious, a round, white-haired little woman in a black dress with a sweet, trusting face said, "Grace, children. Allison, say Grace, dear. . ."

Frances, Ron's wife, tall, blond, smartly dressed, said to her 3-year-old son, "Bow your head, Ronnie. Yes, bow your head like Mummie . . . That's right, darling."

Ronnie looked vastly amused. In his house, the lovely Connecticut country place which Frances' affluent parents had given Ron and Frances for a wedding present, the ritual of thankfulness for a meal was never observed.

Allison, Edith's 9-year-old daughter, closed her eyes tightly, shutting away the sight of the wonderful steaming food which had kept her lingering in the kitchen most of the morning and began in a childish treble, "Dear Lord, we thank thee . . ."

Temple Graves bowed her dark head and made her red mouth firm so as to control its trembling. The closer the moment came for her departure to take a job in Washington (she was leaving in the morning) the more unbearable it became to leave her home and family.

Temple, 21, with a face in which there was beauty and sweetness and strength and discontent, had two years of college and a year in business school behind her. Upstairs her bags were packed and there was a ticket in her purse to take her to a boarding house in Washington and thence to the only job she had ever had. The Senator, a friend of her father's, had found a place for her, a place made necessary after some of her father's investments had been found to be practically worthless. For Samuel Graves had died a year ago.

Seven heads came up simultaneously and Ron picked up the carving knife.

"My, the table is pretty," Grandmother Hallet said. "But it takes away my appetite to think that so many people in the world today haven't enough to eat. You know what Mathilde wrote us from France . . . that they don't have enough to eat to set the table any more."

Ron, affable, handsome, said, "Now don't start that, Grandmother . . ."

The old lady looked solemn. "I went through the last war. Don't tell me anything about war, young man. But I put all of it in the hands of the Lord. He has always taken care of us and He always will. That's how I feel about it."

Ron said, "There's more to it than that. We have to do something to help ourselves. We can't sit back and let the Lord stop the Germans."

Frances sighed. "Ron, please, must we talk about the war? It's so—so unpleasant. There isn't any war here and I don't see why people have to talk about it all the time. It isn't any of our business."

Temple, her hair very dark next to Frances' blondness, her loose red sweater rather shabby next to Frances' new black dress asked, "Don't you read the papers, Fran?"

"No," she answered crossly, "I haven't read one in months and I don't intend to read them. They bore me. They're hysterical. They print a lot of lies to keep people stirred up so they'll buy more papers . . . Ronnie, don't drop things, darling." She glanced at Edith. "I'm afraid his table manners aren't very good, Mother Graves. He doesn't eat with us at home, you know. The nurse feeds him in the kitchen."

"It doesn't matter about the cloth," Edith said. "Let him enjoy himself."

Temple was thinking how wonderful her mother was, how tired she must be and how unwillingly though bravely she was seeing her, Temple, leave home. She knew, too, that her mother was quite conscious of Fran's irritation and that Fran would much have preferred her parents elaborate home in which to observe the holiday. And Fran would not allow herself to think of the war because she wanted nothing to interfere with her correct and busy social life. Her money had made Ron soft and lazy. He was vice president in her father's company at an enormous salary, no small portion of which would Edith accept. Fran, Temple thought hotly, did not see enough of her son to know about his manners.

Edith's hands were cold, and the food she had prepared seemed without seasoning. If only, she thought, she could find a place to cry, but there was no place in the big house which flanked the campus where she could go to cry. Some member of her family would be sure to find her. She was glad that neither Ron nor Allison, the two most likely to be thoughtless, had mentioned Temple's going away. If Ron joked about it, she simply could not bear it. What utter nonsense. What was the matter with her? Sheer fatigue, of course.

Temple would be all right. The boarding house was a highly reputable one and the Senator had written that he would keep in touch with her. Temple was an adult, a young woman of intelligence and beauty with the promise of a splendid life before her. Kidding myself, Edith thought. "Just kidding myself, as the children say. Because I've always felt that Temple was more complex than Ron and Allison and that living for Temple would be more than drifting into pleasant things as it has been for Ron. Temple gets her teeth into things. She's intense and sensitive and impulsive . . ."

"You're seeing Dr. McCormick tonight, aren't you, Temple?" she asked.

Temple nodded. The last evening with Harry . . . Fortunately that didn't matter. Nothing would be lost in a good-bye to him.

Ronnie said something cute and everybody laughed. Allison stopped eating. Her plate was quite empty.

That evening Temple put on her brown tweed coat and left the house before Harry came. She wanted both to walk around the quiet suburb where there were lighted candles in every window and also to escape a sudden and increasing antipathy for her brother's wife. That afternoon she had heard them in the room next to hers, and heard Fran say:

"But why do we have to stay, darling? There's nothing to do here and there's so much happening at Mother's. We can't even have a drink. Your Grandmother won't allow it. And Ronnie is getting on my nerves. I couldn't bring Gertrude. There isn't any place for her to sleep."

And Ron had said, "Okay, if that's the way you feel about it. I'll tell mother we're making too much work for her. Say, you know, we could take Temple as far as New York in the car . . ." Fran had said quickly, "Oh, no, Ron; it would crowd us terribly."

Temple's hands dug into the pockets of her coat. They had thought it so wonderful when Ron, after a college romance, had married a rich girl.

She turned her attention back to herself and thought once again that she was leaving, actually, leaving the quiet suburb that had been built around a university. Walking across the campus where she had spent two happy years, she came to the Administration building at the top of which was a beacon, casting light upon the whole community — the light of learning. . . . She had not had enough learning. There was so much to know and read and see. And she had just begun to feel her inner world expanding when her father's sudden death had snatched her from it and put her in a crowded business school where she had felt she was neither human nor alive, but a mere automaton.

She had resented the business school as she had resented many things which a good many people accepted with complacency—the violent, short-lived love affairs common to college towns, the insincerity of girls in whose friendship she had believed and all the sham and untruth and gossip and unfairness that permeates any small community crowded with competitive-minded young people.

Still it was her town; she loved it and she could not leave it without pain. She was not like Ron. Everything was not "okay" with her. To be alive, simply alive, was not enough. Somehow one had to justify one's being. Somehow one had to know the reason why . . .

Temple was in no hurry to return to the house where young Dr. McCormick was doubtlessly waiting. For theirs was no romance and Temple often had wondered whether you could call it even a friendship. Five years older than she, an aloof and brilliant chemistry instructor, he had come to the university as a freshman and had made his reputation as a scholar and an athlete and also as a boy who had worked his way through. With no family and his background obscure, he was remembered by his class as the only boy who had not gone home for the holidays. He had had no home to go to.

However, he had become a figure on the campus for considerable speculation and romantic interest. Girls uninterested in chemistry took his course once they had seen him. A tall, strongly-built young man with an arresting face, penetrating blue eyes and a sardonic, handsome mouth he managed somehow both to mingle in the town's social life and to retain his innermost privacy. Though stories circulated about his frequent trips to New York, he was held in high regard by the president of the university and the entire faculty.

He and Temple had been mere nodding acquaintances until a year ago. Seeing her on a corner then, waiting for a bus, he had opened the door of his car and asked whether he could give her a lift. When she accepted, chiefly because she was cold, he had said that he was sorry she had to give up her college work. After that he had called her frequently, extending casual invitations to a movie or concert or lecture. At all times she was polite and cautious and amusing, but definitely the older person condescending to the younger. And Temple, absorbed in the problem of her home and family and hurt by her father's death, had accepted simply because she had had nothing else to do.

Of late, since she was no longer of the university crowd, she, who had been quite popular when she had been one of it, had been either innocently forgotten or deliberately neglected by most of those who kept up the town's social reputation. Thus, because of hurts and disappointments multiplied, her relationships with Harry McCormick was perhaps the only relationship of her life which she had never tried to explain to herself.

At home she found him in the living room, his long legs, in gray tweed trousers which did not match his brown coat, crossed leisurely, a cigaret in his hand. He seemed casual and slow, she had often thought, and yet he seemed to move more quickly than other people. When she walked with him, she always had to hurry. He was talking to her mother who thought him charming, but who was unsure whether she liked him or not. Grandmother Hallett was at her ceaseless knitting, her plump fingers busy, her face in repose. Allison, sprawled on the floor before the large Christmas tree, was frowning over a new game. Ronnie was probably in bed and Ron and Fran had gone to call on people whom Ron thought of as old friends but who were to Fran dim figures of half-forgotten school days, inviting both her pity and scorn.

THREE FEDERAL CHARGES WAIT MAN'S ARREST

Man Who Escaped Crawford Officials Linked to Detroit Kidnaping.

BUCYRUS — Serious federal charges are awaiting the arrest of the Chicago and Detroit gunman who escaped from Crawford county law enforcement officials a week ago following a shooting affray with a deputy sheriff west of Bucyrus, Sheriff Albert H. French disclosed today.

FBI agents and Detroit and Chicago law officers have been cooperating with the local sheriff's office in identifying the gunman, whom federal officers said is wanted in Detroit for kidnaping, rape and stealing an automobile and driving it across the state boundary. The man, whose name officials decline to disclose, is also wanted in Chicago for a mail truck robbery, impersonating an officer and for stealing a car and driving it out of the state.

The car which the gunman abandoned when he escaped on foot from officers here and stolen clothing and jewelry left in the car, have been turned over to federal agents. The clothing included a complete police uniform belonging to the Detrot department, stolen in that city where the suspect formerly was employed in an apartment house as assistant janitor, and which the gunman donned to hold up and rob a Chicago mail truck. The jewelry has also been identified as that stolen at the same apartment house.

The man made his escape from Deputy Sheriff Ralph Schreck at Point Place filling station west of Bucyrus when Schreck was called to the station to investigate the suspect's suspicious actions. Station attendants told officers that the man had been loitering about the station for more than an hour attempting to trade a spare wheel and new tire from the stolen car for gasoline. He escaped in a corn field in the darkness after emptying his gun at Deputy Schreck, who escaped injury from the bullets although one passed close enough to his sleeve to cause powder burns.

(The $64 question — with apologies to everyone who ever did this before——:

Is it the guy in the stands who does the most moaning and groaning over bonehead plays that knows the most about football? . . . Why do fans expect high school footballers to be as smart as the college boys, and then not even give the college boys too big a score in the brain department? . . . Don't you love the guy who knows better than anyone else in the ball park why So-an-so is not in the game and why So-and-so is? (usually it's something about the kid's father being one of the coach's best friends, or vice versa). . . . Don't you always get a kick out of watching the flag go up while the band plays "The Star-Spangled Banner?" . . . but could you sing the first verse if you had to?

Don't you hate those guys who can watch a startling touchdown run without so much as blinking their eyes, let alone yelling? . . . And don't you hate those guys who beat you madly on the back whenever a home team boy rips off three yards? . . . Don't you know you can avoid taking that sort of beating (well, you can cut it to a minimum) by getting a seat in the top row of the stands? . . . Don't you think the time goes faster in the fourth quarter than in the first . . . or the second? Especially when the home team is behind?

Don't you wish you knew your team well enough so you didn't have to look in the program to see who made that gain . . . and then miss the next play? . . . Doesn't it always look as though there are more than just 22 players on the field right after the kickoff? . . . Wouldn't you rather be most anyone else than the guy with the ball with 11 armored giants bearing down on you after catching the kickoff?

* * *

Don't you think writing stuff like this ought to be easy, instead of boring? . . . How do you like the perennial fan with the cowbell? . . . Why is it he always has to sit right next to YOU? Do you think the team would always win if it ran the plays the grandstand coaches select? . . . Do you think it ever would?

* * *

How long can stuff like this go on?
I'm already pale and wan!

Is there anything that can be done to keep it from raining when you've decided not to take a raincoat along? . . . Don't you love the people in front of you who raise an umbrella as soon as the sun goes behind a cloud? . . . And what's your reaction to the guy who stumbles across your legs and spills coke (or something) all over you at the half?

* * *

Don't you think this is as good a place to stop this as any?

So do I.

Brown's Bat Beats Pirates

Jimmy Knocks in Both of St. Louis Runs.

By SID FEDER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

THE CHANCES are you are never going to see Jimmy Brown up there in the Hall of Fame. And you'd be willing to bet his chances of landing the most valuable player award any year are about as bright as one of those "solid gold" watches you can pick up for a dollar.

* * *

But when it comes to handing out the posies to the guy who did as much—or more—than anyone else to bring the St. Louis Cardinals the National league pennant, don't overlook James Roberson Brown.

The Cards still have the little job of sewing up the flag first. But after their 2-1 win over Pittsburgh yesterday—in which Second Sacker Brown, incidentally, batted both run across—they still sported a 2½ game game bulge, with only five to go, even though Brooklyn took a 3-1 decision over the Phillies. And around Broadway today, the boys were laying 20-1 against the Bums.

There will no doubt be some arguments over Jimmy Brown, of course. The folks talk about Mort Cooper's zip-ball and the awful things Country Slaughter does to pitchers. And when you mention Jimmy, they generally brush him off with, "Oh, yeah, he's pretty good too, but he's only batting 260." Yet, National league manager say he's the key man in the works, the guy who holds the infield together. And opposing infielders shudder when h gets on base, because, they tell you, "he'll steal anything."

It should also be pointed out that it's not so much what Jimmy does while he's in there—but what the Cardinals do when he's out. For, in the last three seasons—1939, '40 and '41—it was while Jimmy was on the shelf with assorted ailments that the Cards blew their chances. And as soon as he got back into action, they thundered down the stretch.

Naturally, all this sounds like something out of Frank Merriwell, but just to polish it off, don't forget that he was on the sidelines only six days this year. And from the day he came back in mid-August the Cards started the surge that has carried them to 36 victories in 43 games.

Yesterday, he pulled one out of the fire almost without any help. In the fourth inning, he singled the first run home. Then, after the Bucs tied it up, he drilled a hit through the infield in the ninth to knock the game-wrecker across. Meantime, the Dodgers took a 3-1 lead in the first frame against the Phils and hung onto it, although Kirby Higbe was in more tough spots than a rubber check specialist.

Marv Breuer looked like a sure winner for the Yankees over the Red Sox as he allowed only one hit for eight innings. Then Ted Williams' 36th homer tied it up in the ninth and Tony Lupien's single in the 11th gave Boston a 3-2 decision and Tex Hughson his 21st win of the year. In the only other big league game of the day, Detroit rolled over the Chicago White Sox 6-4.

Touchdown Coming Right Up

One of the 1941 All-American stars, Bill Dudley of Virginia, has just got away on an 85-yard run against the Washington Redskins in the capital to give his team, the Pittsburgh Steelers, six points. Dudley's scoring jaunt failed to win the game for the Pitt team, however, as the Redskins went on to a 28-14 victory. Dudley was injured shortly after this picture was taken.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—Wide World—The Army Emergency Relief expects to clear about $250,000 from the eight games played by the two All-Army football teams—after paying all expenses, cutting the pros in for sizeable shares and in some cases splitting with other charities . . . Figures won't be ready until all the bills are in, but unofficial estimates are that about 265,000 fans turned out and paid about two bucks apiece.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Francis E. Stan, Washington Evening Star: "The Louis-Conn affair is one scrap drive worthy of support, but if the war department condones expenses that may be as much as $250,000, it can't be considered an all-out war effort. Offhand, we can't recall reading where Ensign Gay, Lieut. Bulkley and a lot of bona fide heroes were given bonuses to pay off their back taxes and debts, so why Louis and Conn?"

Red Birds Win Title Over Hens

Score Fourth Straight Victory Over Toledo.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The rampant Columbus Red Birds captured the American Association playoff crown last night by scoring their fourth straight victory over Toledo and will enter their fifth "Little World Series" in 10 years.

The flock's opponent will be the winner of the Syracuse-Jersey City series in the International league Syracuse now is leading three game to none.

The Birds wrapped up the Association crown 6 to 1 at Toledo behind the stellar three-hit pitching of Red Munger, concluding a rout begun last Friday night with a 9 to 0 triumph. The Birds won Saturday night 6 to 4 and Sunday 2 to 1.

The Ohio State Journal said it was "fairly definite" the Little World series would start here, possibly Thursday night if Syracuse winds up its set with Jersey City today. The paper added that on the basis of present information it would be a two-three-two affair—the first two games here, three in Syracuse, and two more here, if needed.

The Birds won the series last year from Montreal Their previous series were in 1937, when they lost to Newark 1934 when they beat Toronto; 1933, when they beat Buffalo, and 1907, when they lost to Toronto.

The playoff victory climaxed spectacular season. Columbus finished third in the pennant chase, behind Kansas City and Milwaukee, after a stretch drive that saw the teams separated by not more than one and a half games.

* * *

Columbus whipped Kansas City four games to three in the preliminary playoffs, while fourth-place Toledo trounced Milwaukee in four of six games.

The playoff title was worth $3,000 of the $12,000 players' pool.

Respect Elyria Tygers Warned

Big Veteran Team Has Yet To Hit Its Stride.

In the midst of a drastic shakeup themselves, Mansfield high school's Tygers went to work today with the warning from Athletic Director Harry Mehock that their Elyria opponents of next Friday night are not to be taken lightly, in spite of the fact that Elyria barely edged Oberlin 8-6 in its opener last week.

"Elyria has a potentially strong outfit," Mehock, who scouted the Elyria-Oberlin game, reported. "They have eight seniors and three juniors in the starting lineup, they're big, they have a good passer in Talarek, a fast, shifty runner in Steve Traicoff, and they're liable to make trouble.

"Last Friday night Elyria was doing a lot of fumbling and just couldn't get going, but they can't be expected to fumble all season, or even next Friday."

The Elyria Chronicle-Telegram Sunday said "At times last night the Pioneers appeared to be formidable, but at others they were much on the pathetic side. They were lucky to win. A break in the fourth quarter decided the issue, and had it not been for this break the game would have ended in a tie. The general opinion was that the worst Oberlin should have gotten was a draw."

Oberlin marched 54 yards for a touchdown in the second period, finally scoring on a pass good for 18 yards. Elyria didn't score until the final quarter when Jim Schuster, Elyria tackle, recovered a fumble on the Oberlin 21 yard line. It took four plays to produce the score. A pass from Talarek to Stydnicki put the ball on the one yard line, where Hopkins crashed over for the tying touchdown.

Then late in the final period Oberlin was penalized to its one yard line. With the game nearly over, Oberlin tried to run the ball out from behind its goal line, and failed for a safety and the deciding two points for Elyria.

NATIONAL SOFTBALL TITLES DECIDED

DETROIT —(AP)— Softball stars from Oklahoma and Louisiana carried the world's championships" home with them today after five days of struggle with the nation's best talent in the neighborhood sport.

The Deeprock Oilers of Tulsa swept to the men's championship of the Amateur Softball Association of America last night, defeating the Zollner Pistons of Fort Wayne, Ind., 2 to 0, in a semi-final game and the Briggs Bombers of Detroit by the same score in the final. The Jax Brewers of New Orleans took the women's title with a 4 to 1 decision over the Garden City Maids of Chicago.

Team Without Backer Leads

Unsponsored Keglers Top Commercial Loop.

There's a pretty fair bowling team looking for a sponsor in the Commercial "C" league. This unsponsored outfit is just leading the league with six wins and no defeats for a fine start on the season. Last night at Colony alleys they defeated Cy's Sandwich shop 3-0.

C Rupp took scoring honors for the league last night with a 616 total on games of 246-181-179. His 246 was high game.

Sailors Win Mid-A Playoff

Blank Canton 2-0 In Final Game of Series.

ERIE, Pa. — (AP) — The Erie Sailors, third in the Mid-Atlantic league's pennant campaign, defeated Canton 2 to 0 last night to win the Shaughnessy playoffs in four straight games.

The triumph came on the strong arm of Red Bartleson, who doled out only four hits, none of them beyond the infield. Only one Canton batter got past first base, and he took second on an error.

* * *

The playoff title revived an old refrain heard 'round the loop last spring. It was to the effect that Erie was the team to beat because it had a greater proportion of seasoned material than any other. But the sailors threatened only once during the summer to take the league leadership away from Charleston, and several times dipped deep in the standings.

Charleston won the pennant, Dayton was a close second, and Canton came in fourth.

Erie requires five games to edge Dayton in the three-out-of-five preliminary playoff, while Canton smothered Charleston in three straight.

Then Erie opened up in the final set and swept through to her four successive victories.

The interest coupons attached to said bonds shall bear the facsimile signature of the Village Clerk. Said bonds shall bear such consecutive numbers as the Village Clerk shall determine.

Section 4. Said tax shall be levied outside the ten mill limitation.

Said tax shall be and is hereby ordered computed, certified, levied and extended upon the tax duplicate and collected by the same officers, in the same manner and at the same time that taxes for general purposes for each of said years are certified, extended and collected. Said tax shall be placed before and in preference to all other items and for the full amount thereof. The funds derived from said tax levies hereby required shall be placed in a separate and distinct fund, which together with all interest collected on the same, shall be irrevocably pledged for the payment of the interest and principal of said bonds when and as the same fall due; further, the amount of the tax to be levied in any year shall be reduced to the extent that funds from the special assessments and taxes thereon levied are available in the fund from which such bonds are to be retired.

Section 5. Said bonds shall be the full general obligations of the village and the full faith, credit and revenue of said village are hereby pledged for the prompt payment of the same. Section 6. That said bonds shall be first offered at par and accrued interest to the Village Treasurer who has charge of the Bond Retirement Fund and if said Treasurer refuses to take any or all of said bonds, then said bonds not so taken shall be advertised for public sale and sold in the manner provided by law under the direction of the Finance Committee and the Clerk, but not for less than their par value and accrued interest; the bond sale advertisement shall state that any one desiring to do so, may present a bid or bids for such bonds based upon their bearing a different rate of interest than hereinbefore fixed, provided, however, that where a fractional interest rate is bid, such fraction shall be one-quarter of one per cent, or multiple thereof; the amount of the bond or certified check to accompany bids shall be $500.00; the proceeds from the sale of said bonds, except the premium and accrued interest thereon and the amount of said bonds issued for interest, shall be used for the purpose aforesaid and for no other purpose; the premium and accrued interest received for such sale and the amount of said bonds issued for interest shall be transferred to the Bond Retirement Fund to be applied in the payment of the principal and interest of said bonds in the manner provided by law.

Section 7. The Village Clerk is hereby directed to forward a certified copy of this ordinance to the County Auditor.

Section 8. That this ordinance is hereby declared to be an emergency measure because certain notes hereinbefore mentioned are about to fall due and must be paid and therefore this ordinance shall be in full force and effect after its passage.

3-length slips WILL FIT YOU BETTER

Wards don't expect all women who wear Size 34, for instance, to be the same height! No—some are tall, some short, some average. Wards know, too, that the "short 34" girl isn't proportioned as the "tall 34." Her slip should have a higher waist and hips—and that's exactly what she'll get in a Ward 3-length—for they're proportioned in bust, waist, and hips as well as in length! Beautifully made — with rip-proof seams, double fabric yokes for long wear. In rayon crepe or satin.
